Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Engineering as a Profession With the advance In science and in tho arts our life and the things we do are becoming more and more complex. With the changes that will occur after the close of the war the demands will be much greater and new opportunities will open. To be able to meet the competition in business and industrial life, the young man of the future will need a much better preparation than can be obtained by a high-school course. In a recent article in the Independent. Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, makes the following comment on the value of the work of high grade technical and engineering schools: Their graduates have a highly specialized knowledge that Is immediately saleable, and if a young man can by any means obtain such a technical education I should say that he would be well-advised to do so. In fact, I believe that this kind of specialized training will in increasing measure become the quickest road to success in practical business...
