JOHN JAMES DYER, First Judge Of The United States District Court For Iowa, 1847-1855. By T. S. Parvin, LL. D. , Clerk Of His Court. HE high character and the great services rendered in the work of State-building by the Pioneers and Old Settlers are being acknowledged by the people of Iowa. The ceremonies of the Semi-Centennial of our States birth just past have conclusively demonstrated this fact and made it apparent to the public view, and we trust that in the future the State-builders who made Iowa may live in the affections of the people and in the history of the State they builded for them. The inspiration that is developed by their successors in this progressive generation in beautifying and enlarging the work of their hands has been supplied in a generous measure by those whose praises were sung and whose deeds were so nobly extolled on yesterday at the jubilee of the young State. Most of the brilliant stars that adorned the firmament when the light of the Territory was lost in the rising of the State have set and have become citizens of that better country whose builder and maker is God. XIII--I. I Iowa was not builded like the great states of the old world nor yet like the old States of our own Union, by successive generations of men and statesmen but rather by a single generation of master workmen. In...
