Excerpt from Ye Antient Wrecke: Loss of the Sparrow-Hawk in 1626 As I stood upon the shore, surveying with my friend* the remains of the vessel which crossed the ocean two hundred and forty years ago, imagination brought vividly before me the scenes of that early voyage, the wrecking of the ship, and the providential escape of the passengers and crew. Two hundred and forty years! Yes, nearly that long period had elapsed from the time of its protracted and unsuccessful battling with the elements, and its subsequent submergence in these sands of Nauset; and to-day the sea, recovering the dominion it so long ago yielded to the land, has disclosed to us the hull in all its fair proportions and symmetry as it glided into the water from the builder s hand, in the reign of James the First. The deep human sympathy which attaches to every scene where men have fought or suffered, which treasures every relic of the times of the Pilgrims.
